Different countries can give to the world different things, such as food, natural resources and cultural activities. One country can't give to the world the same things as another.

All countries have national food. Each person in Russia eats bread with all food and in China people eat rice instead of bread. Asian countries mostly eat spicy food.

Also all countries have natural resources. Russia is very rich for natural resources. We have many metals and water, that we can drink. Other countries have different resources.

And all countries have cultural activities, such as games, like lapa in Russia, sports activities such as golf in England. Many countries play these games and do sports, but the most they like in their countries.

Countries are different, but we always can try things from each country. Now we have many ways to do it: go to restaurants with food of each country, watch some video of games in sports on phone and go abroad to try it. That is always I wanted to say.
